Alleged Intruder Is Overpowered

Owner of Land in Question Disarms Claimant and Causes Arrest

Blackfoot, Idaho, April 27.—An argument growing out of a misunderstanding of the rights to riparian lands ended in a scuffle here in which J. I. Stewart, owner of the land in question declares he took two revolvers from a man named Rice, whom he considered an intruder and drove him from the land. Bystanders said more serious trouble probably was averted when Stewart who says Rice pointed a revolver at him, grasped the arm of Rice, and knocking the gun from him, grappled with him and overpowered Rice a man named Cheney who accompanied Rice to the disputed property, took no part in the quarrel.

The young son of Mr. Stewart picked up the revolver his father knocked from Rice's hand and covered Rice when he says he saw Rice was making an effort as if to draw another gun from his pocket. When Mr. Stewart had taken both guns he ordered Rice from the land and has tened to Blackfoot, where he swore to a complaint charging Rice with carrying concealed weapons and threatening to use them. Rice was arrested.

The trouble is said to be the second time Rice has attempted to make riparian entry on the land.

CLOCKWORK BOMB FOUND IN TURKISH WAR OFFICE

Timed to Explode While Council Would Be in Session.

Paris, April 27.—A powerful clockwork bomb was found hidden yesterday in the office of the minister of war at Constantinople, according to a dispatch from Saloniki. It was timed to explode at an hour when the council would be in session. The meetings of this body are attended by Enver Pasha, minister of war; Field Marshal von der Goltz and General Liman von Sanders.

An investigation is said to have disclosed that the bomb was placed in the room by a sweep who had come to clean the chimney and who then disappeared. Several minor officials connected with the ministry of war have been arrested on suspicion of being his accomplices. The police believe the plot was directed against the Young Turks and the Germans.

Members of the committee of union and progress are said to have decided at a meeting to which no Germans were admitted to adhere to a waiting policy, but to favor the conclusion of a separate peace with the allies if Germany failed to provide force sufficient to repulse an attack on the Dardanelles.

Hiking' Deaf Girls Lose Courage and Decide to Return

Tales of Danger and Hardships Attending Long Walk Causes a Change of Heart

Ogden, April 27.—Growing timid as result of the tales of danger and hardships told them Emma Emmertson and Elsie Christiansen, the two deaf girl graduates of the Utah School for the Deaf and Blind, who set out from Ogden a week ago to walk to Washington, D. C., sent notice to Ogden today from Bridger, Wyoming, that they had decided to return. Residents along the road, they said warned them that the trip was too dangerous for girls.

"This is the life," one of the girls wrote to a deaf school teacher from Evanston, Wyoming. "I have never known such blistered feet, aching muscles and cheerful souls in all my life." The first few steps were easy and then, too, everybody that came along offered us a lift. Of course, we were fresh enough to refuse, but now—no one offers."

The writer related that no wild animals were seen, but that they did see a snake. They forgot to use their guns, she said, in trying to kill the reptile and when it made the first move after they had thrown at it they ran.

"Yesterday," the letter goes on, "we enjoyed a dandy drive of about seven miles with a bunch of surveyors. They were nice fellows and very amusing. Three of them were rather young and handsome and acted very cute for our benefit."

The girls had planned to enter Gallaudet school for the deaf in Washington, D. C. They will arrive in Ogden tomorrow, when it is expected they will make plans to reach the school by some method other than "hiking."

SPAIN BUSY BUYING MUNITIONS OF WAR

New York, April 27.—Spain is preparing for war.

A special government commission, it became known today has opened headquarters in this city for the purpose of purchasing cartridges, auto trucks and aeroplanes of the latest pattern.

The Bank of Spain has given the commission unlimited credit and established large deposits for the purchase of supplies with the National City bank and the First National bank of New York.

Spain's official representatives deny that their government is planning to enter the war on the side of the allies. They explain their financial operations here thusly:

"Spain intends to be ready. She believes that it is best to prepare for war in times of peace."

The widely spread report that England is furnishing Spain with the money to buy ammunition, motors and flying machines was denied. At the same time, however, it was admitted that England is now backing a Spanish firm in the construction of a large shipbuilding yard in Spain which will make a specialty of fast transport craft.

All the movements of the Spanish commissioners who have charge of the purchase of the war munitions in the United States have been guarded with unusual secrecy.

The secret plans and purposes of the Spanish commission were obtained by the International News Service from a merchant who has confidential negotiations with the Spanish commission.

The commission is composed of three Spanish army and two Spanish

Seven Campaigns On Hand at Once

London Times Points Out Blunders Made by British, Notably at Dardanelles

London, April 27.—The Times today points out that Great Britain now with the attack on the Dardanelles in progress, has seven campaigns on her hands, and that after the Flanders battle, the advance against the defenses of the Dardanelles promises to be the most costly in men and material, especially, it declares, as blunders made in the spring have deprived the allies of all the advantages of a surprise and given the Turks ample time to strengthen their defenses.

"The operations appear to have begun successfully," says The Times military correspondent. "Nothing as yet has been revealed as to where the troops were landed but it was probably at the southwest end of the Gallipoli peninsula, the reported landing at Enos having been a feint. Neither is anything known concerning the number of troops landed."

"Advancing from Enos, General Hamilton would be obliged to meet all the Turkish armies and to incur other disadvantages but with troops posted across the peninsula and his flanks covered and protected by the fleet, he will be in a much stronger position, although the task to be accomplished is far from easy."

"It is now, however, being carried out as it ought to have been begun, namely, conjointly by the two services and not by one alone."

French's Movements Hampered

"It is now more than ever important to realize that General French's movements have been hampered by a want of sufficient ammunition. The casualty lists tell their own tale. The consumption of ammunition by the troops is immense and is certain to increase rather than to diminish. At the front they are asking when the new armies are to take the field."

The correspondent says there is no justification for assuming that the entire 36 divisions of British troops mentioned by Chancellor of the Exchequer Lloyd George in a recent speech in the house of commons are actually in France.

"Mr. Lloyd George," the correspondent continues, "made no such claim. England is literally crammed with troops at the moment when decisive operations in the western theater are imminent and if our operations are not successful, the blame will be with the cabinet, who ought to know what preparations the Germans are making in the west."

With regard to the battle in Flanders, the correspondent says the German attack was successful beyond anything that can be hoped for but that there is no sign that there is any general attack.

"We may therefore reasonably hope," the correspondent says in conclusion, "that the allies by a combined and energetic action, will reestablish their line."
